Deborah Young, CEO, The RegTech Association, said:

"A heartfelt congratulations to our winners this year for their significant efforts in business growth, innovation and contribution to the industry. The RegTech Awards underpin everything we're trying to achieve – working towards a global centre of excellence and accelerating RegTech adoption across regulated ecosystems.

"These businesses have clearly demonstrated their hard work in continuing to cultivate RegTech both in Australia and overseas, and very much deserve this recognition. In fact, all our finalists have helped the industry come a long way in 12 months and should be applauded. We have seen such diversity in the entries including from regulated organisations and large corporates who are playing their role in encouraging and adopting innovation.

"While we have yet to see the impact to innovation from the current pandemic, we want to send out a clear message that we are open for business and industry contributions and achievements need celebrating more than ever.

"I look forward to watching what all our members continue to achieve over the next few years. The time for RegTech to take flight and gain velocity is now – the industry needs a heavy focus on accelerating adoption as we truly begin to see the resulting social impacts on people, trust, and the future of work."

The Awards were judged independently by a panel of expert practitioners. The judging panel, list of finalists and criteria for each category can be found at <https://www.regtech.org.au/rta-awards-2020>.
